The Black Forest region is essentially known for three distinctive features: its highlands, scenery & woods, the typical Black Forest Gateau whose success is based on tasty cherry schnapps & the cuckoo-clock.

The name black forest was quite accurate in earlier times, when the forest was impenetrable though profitable - wood, silver & ore were the foundations of the inhabitants comparable wealth. When the wood trade began to falter clock-making stepped in & has been a successful industry since.

Another famous feature of the region are the traditional hats with their enormous pompoms called 'Bollenhut'. They are particularly distinctive among Germany's traditional costumes. The hat is famous all over the world even though it was originally worn in only three parishes of the Black Forest region & on special occasions only.
